The Boulder Municipal Airport future is still uncertain...the facts are:

- Broad Community Support: Boulder community members support the airport! In a 2023 community survey with 961 responses, 84% wanted to keep the airport.
- Local control means locals pay: If the City does not accept FAA funding, it will need to fund $13M over the next 15 years from the general fund--the first time local taxpayers would be funding the airport. To decline money from the FAA while complaining about financial shortfalls is hypocritical.
- Critical use for wildfire, flood, and human evacuation: Boulder is in the top 3% of cities nationally for wildfire risk. The airport is a critical operations center for fire and flood rescue efforts. Med Evac helicopter is based at the Boulder Airport, improving response times for medical emergencies.
- Transition to unleaded fuel, electric aircraft, and air taxis is already underway.
- Economic value and employment at the airport: According to CDOT, the Boulder Airport generated $78M in economic revenues with environmental research, business activity, and aviation-related services.
- Boulder Municipal Airport offers educational and experiential activities for kids and young adults. Multiple non-profits provide up-close engagement with pilots and educators as well as flight and soaring scholarships.

Boulder Municipal Airport will celebrate 100 years in 2028. Help us celebrate by supporting its next 100 years! Scan QR code to tell Boulder City Council to support our local airport....and take FAA funds to pay for it!
